Minister's Foreword

I am delighted to introduce the Treasure Act 1996 Annual Report for 2024, which contains details of finds made in 2022 in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. During the Covid pandemic the treasure process was effectively suspended for the first year, and the figures for 2022 reflect the first return to normality, with 1,377 finds reported. I would like to thank everyone concerned in the treasure process, from the finders to the Treasure Valuation Committee for their continuing hard work and commitment.

2024 was also an important year for the Treasure Act 1996, with the first find to be declared treasure under the new significance definition introduced in 2023, and the acquisition of the Chew Valley Hoard. The first find to fall under the new definition, a ninth century silver penny of Aethelstan II, was declared treasure in September 2024. Aethelstan was initially a Viking invader, and this coin was minted after he concluded a peace treaty and converted to Christianity, a reflection of how important political events have an impact on the practicalities of everyday life.

The Chew Valley Hoard comprising 2,584 silver coins was the most valuable find ever to pass through the treasure process. What mattered most however was its historical importance: apparently hidden during the difficult times following the Norman Conquest, the coins demonstrated the transition from Anglo-Saxon to Norman rule in England. The acquisition of the hoard by South West Heritage Trust, with the support of the National Lottery Heritage Fund, the Art Fund, the Friends of The Museum of Somerset and the Somerset Archaeological and Natural History Society, also brought into relief the contribution to the treasure process made by the Treasure Valuation Committee.

The Committee, expertly led by Dr Roger Bland, advises the Secretary of State on the amount and distribution of rewards. They give their time and expertise voluntarily, and I would particularly like to thank Dr Megan Gooch and Lucinda Orr, who gave up two days of their very valuable time, to examine and report on the Chew Valley Hoard. I am very grateful to all members for their support, especially Harry Bain and Marian Campbell who have recently left the committee, following ten years of service.

I was also glad to see that like the Chew Valley Hoard, so many treasure finds (390) are acquired by local and regional museums under the treasure process. To see a 300 year old ring, or a thousand year old axe head that belonged to someone who lived where the viewer lives now provides a vivid physical link to the past and to the area. Promoting that interest and enthusiasm for local history and life is the purpose and aim of the treasure process, and I am very pleased to support it.

Introduction

Under the Treasure Act 1996, finders have a legal obligation to report all finds of potential Treasure. For a summary see <https://finds.org.uk/treasure> or the leaflet Advice for Finders of Archaeological Objects, Including Treasure.

The Act allows a museum to acquire Treasure finds for public benefit. If this happens, a reward is usually paid, which is (normally) shared equally between the finder and landowner, though the interested parties may wish to waive their rewards, enabling museums to acquire such finds at no or reduced cost. Rewards are capped at the market value of the find, determined by the Secretary of State on the advice of an independent panel of experts known as the Treasure Valuation Committee.

There were 1,377 finds reported Treasure in 2022, 305 more than in the previous year – a 28% increase, and the highest number on record. The large increase on the previous year is partly due to the fact that in 2021, the country was still coming out of the conditions put in place to combat the COVID-19 pandemic, which had limited face-to-face contact between finders and Finds Liaison Officers (FLOs), the primary avenue for Treasure reporting.

These cases consisted of over 11,957 individual artefacts, which make up a significant portion of the archaeological items found in England and Wales recorded with the Portable Antiquities Scheme (PAS). The PAS and its network of FLOs play an important role in the operation of the Treasure Act, advising finders of their legal obligations, providing advice on the process and writing reports on potential Treasure finds for coroners.

Operation

The administration of the Treasure Act is undertaken by the British Museum in England, Amgueddfa Cymru in Wales, and National Museums Northern Ireland in Northern Ireland. This work involves the registration of finds, working with FLOs (in England and Wales) and expert curators, scientists and conservators to investigate finds and provide advice to Coroners. These institutions also liaise with local museums to determine whether they wish to pursue acquisition of a case of potential Treasure, and where they do not, advise the Secretary of State to disclaim the Crown's interest in the find.

Treasure Valuation Committee

The Committee's terms of reference are detailed in the Treasure Act 1996 Code of Practice. In short, it is tasked to recommend to the Secretary of State the value of Treasure finds, to recommend abatements of rewards in the case of misbehaviour on the part of the interested parties, and to recommend an apportionment of the reward when there is a disagreement among the parties. The Committee is made up of independent experts appointed for their knowledge of antiquities; its membership also includes someone to represent the interests of finders, a museums' representative, and an expert in cultural property law.

Membership of the Committee consists of Professor Roger Bland OBE (Chair), Ms Gail Boyle, Ms Marian Campbell, Ms Harry Bain, Dr Megan Gooch, Mr Christopher Martin, Ms Lucinda Orr and Professor Leslie Webster.

The British Museum's Treasure Team acts as the secretariat to the Committee, and a civil servant from the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) attends meetings of the Committee.

More information on the Committee, as well as electronic versions of the minutes of the meetings of the Committee, can be found online at finds.org.uk/treasure

Number of Treasure cases and geographic distribution

The number of Treasure cases reported in 2022 was 1,377 (Table A). This is an increase of 305 on the previous year, and 74 more than 2019, the year that had previously seen the most Treasure reported.

Treasure finds by Country, County/Unitary Authority and Government Region

Table B illustrates the geographic distribution of Treasure finds. Each of the constituent nations saw the highest number of Treasure cases reported in any year, 76 for Wales, 10 for Northern Ireland and 1,291 for England.

The largest number of finds reported Treasure remained in the eastern part of England, particularly the counties of Norfolk (95 cases), Kent (81), Suffolk (75) and North Yorkshire (74). The high-level of reporting in these areas is at least partially enabled by a greater resource to deal with them, with each of these regions having either multiple FLOs, an additional Finds Liaison Assistant or intern. The Vale of Glamorgan (17) saw a 112% increase in the number of cases reported over 2021. In terms of government region, the South East had the highest number of finds (see map 1, courtesy of DCMS statisticians, below).

Timing of Treasure cases in England

As of 2nd July 2024, 712 of the 1,291 cases reported under the Treasure Act in England had been completed – that is, either acquired by a museum, disclaimed, or found not to be Treasure. The average length of time for processing completed cases was 345 days; the average length of time for all cases reported in 2022 was 514 days.

Analysis of Treasure finds by period, type and disposition

Table C provides the dispositional outcome of Treasure cases according to period and type.

Finders are reminded that Treasure belongs to the Crown (not the finder or landowner). The primary purpose of the Treasure Act is to enable these finds to be acquired by public collections (museums), for the benefit of all, but there is a recognition that much material which meets the definition of Treasure is not 'museum worthy' or museums do not have the means to acquire it. For those finds that are acquired, rewards are paid at the discretion of the Secretary of State, and the finder and landowner are normally paid a reward equal to the market value of the find, as determined by the Secretary of State, on the basis of a recommendation by the Treasure Valuation Committee. However, parties are encouraged to support the aims of the Act by waiving rewards. Where rewards are claimed, the responsibility for providing the money to pay the reward lies with the museum which acquires the find. Therefore, museums must decide, with each find, whether it is in the public interest for it to be acquired. In cases where a museum declines to pursue acquisition of a find of Treasure, the Crown 'disclaims' its interest.

As in the previous year, a large number of cases (239) had unknown dispositions at the time of report writing (August 2024). These tend to be larger and more complex cases, for example hoards or assemblages containing multiple items or needing conservation work before they can be assessed, but there can also be delays for other reasons.

Disregarding those cases with unknown dispositions, then, in 2022 more than half (57%) of all Treasure cases were disclaimed by the Crown and returned to the finder or landowner – this is similar to previous years (2021 = 60%, 2020 = 57%, 2019 = 58%, 2018 = 59%, 2017 = 59%). This includes both cases where no museum wished to acquire the find in the first place, and those where a museum had expressed initial interest in acquiring, but had to withdraw from acquisition later in the process.

The percentage of cases being acquired by museums (including both donations and cases where the museum had to pay) was 37%, about 5% more than in 2021 but identical to 2020. As with previous years, coin cases were acquired by museums at a higher rate than object cases (43% versus 36%), and as a general observation, the older an object or coin, the more likely it is to be acquired by museums.

There is a public cost to the administration of the Treasure Act, but it is those cases that are acquired by museums and where a reward is paid that occupy a large amount of resource, especially in terms of staff time. There are also the direct costs incurred as part of the valuation process, including paying travel costs to courier items and for the Treasure Valuation Committee and the valuation fees of members of the antiquities trade. Accordingly, museums have been reminded that they should only express interest in acquiring finds if they have a serious and realistic chance to complete the acquisition.

Another 5% of cases were found to fall outside the definition of Treasure after they were reported.

Donations

The generosity of those interested parties who waive their rewards is essential in ensuring that a high number of finds end up in public collections. The DCMS, national museums and the Portable Antiquities Scheme maintain a policy of proactive encouragement of interested parties to consider waiving their right to a reward. Such actions are termed 'donations'.

At the time of report writing, of the cases reported in 2022 which are being acquired, 15% (64) have seen one or more interested parties waive their right to a reward, broadly consistent with the percentage of donations in the last three years. This will no doubt increase as more cases are declared Treasure at inquest and valued – most donations come after at least a provisional valuation of the case has been carried out, as it is from that point that interested parties appreciate the market value of the find. For instance, in the Treasure Act Annual Report 2019 it was reported that at the time that 59 parties had waived a claim to a reward; that figure now stands at 180!

The following donors are happy to be named in this report:

Andy Carter	Mr & Mrs Bristow
Ben Gowing	Mr A R Hawker
Brian & Linda Lear	Paul Jones
Courteenhall Estate	Paul Knight
Craig Jelley	Paul Shrubb
David Carr	Richard Mortimer-Lee
David Spanton	Richard Sheppard
Derek Wood	Robert Middleton
Graham Rawson	Ross Jenkins
John Covell	Sarah Sorosh-Kaboti
Jon Daniels	Sir John White, Bt
Kay Stevenson	The President and Scholars of the College of
Keith Hollinshead	Saint Mary Magdalen
Lesley Webb	Thomas Gould
Mark Gosney
Mark Hastings
Mervyn Singer

Some of these were for notable finds, and the amount of money foregone represented substantial savings for the acquiring museums. Brian and Linda Lear, the owners of the land where an Early Medieval gold object, decorated with filigree (2022 T389; SUR-FACB24) waived a claim of £500 so that it could be acquired by Discover Bucks Museum. The finders and landowners (who wish to remain anonymous) in the case of a Roman silver trumpet brooch (2022 T1160; SWYOR-8E5197) did not claim a reward of £400 and allowed Craven Museum to acquire it at no expense.

Some finders and landowners waived their right to a reward prior to a valuation being performed – an example of this is the case of a Medieval silver-gilt pilgrim badge found in Topcroft, Norfolk (2022 T963; NMS-6EB2F9), where the finder and landowner generously agreed to let the item go straight to Norwich Castle Museum. This not only helped the acquiring museums, but also saved public money by not requiring the system to pay for provisional valuations from a member of the trade.

Table D: Method of discovery for 2022 Treasure finds from England, Wales & Northern Ireland

	Number of finds	%
Metal detecting	1296	94.12
Archaeological find	53	3.85
Chance find/eyes only	8	0.58
Mudlarking	2	0.15
To Be Confirmed	18	1.31
Total	1,377	100

Table D gives the method of discovery of finds reported as Treasure in 2022. As in previous years, metal-detecting accounts for the vast majority of Treasure cases reported in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. A not insignificant amount arise from formal archaeological investigations (53), with a small number of finds made by chance or mudlarking (10 in total).

Responsible Searching

The Code of Practice for Responsible Detecting, endorsed by the main archaeological, metal-detecting and landowner bodies, advises (among other aspects of best practice) that finders who discover anything below the ploughsoil or a concentration of finds or unusual material, should stop digging, contact their local Finds Liaison Officer, and wait for archaeological support before continuing to dig. This allows for the opportunity for the context of the find to be properly recorded, and for the artefacts to be recovered safely. Recently, Finds Liaison Officers have been asked to report whether Treasure finds reported to them comprised undisturbed hoards or assemblages and if so, whether the finder had sought assistance before proceeding to remove the items.

In 2022, of the 1,245 finds made by metal detectorists, 9 consisted of previously undisturbed assemblages, and archaeological assistance was obtained in excavating 7 of those cases (77%), a great improvement on the percentage (35%) in the previous year.

The goal of the Treasure Act is to ensure the widest possible benefit from these finds by allowing them to be acquired by public museums. The Treasure Act provides a reliable and secure mechanism for museum acquisition, as the objects all have clear, established provenances and the museums do not have to negotiate with private dealers or pay auction fees. Table E lists all of the museums, museum services or archaeological archives across the country acquiring Treasure reported in the years 2012 – 2022, along with the number of cases they have acquired. Over the course of this ten-year period, 268 different bodies have acquired Treasure. For cases reported in 2022, 125 institutions acquired or are in the process of acquiring finds (18 more than in the previous year). The large majority are acquired by local (i.e. non-national) museums; 389 of 423 cases in 2022, or 92%. As in the previous year, the largest number of cases are being acquired by Norwich Castle Museum (23). Shropshire Museums are acquiring 17 cases. In most instances, the national museum will act as the back-up and acquire important finds if the local museum is unable to. In Wales, Amgueddfa Cymru has traditionally acquired the majority of finds reported, but thanks to support from its Heritage Lottery Fund supported Saving Treasures; Telling Stories project, many more museums around the country now have the experience and support to acquire Treasure from their local area. Heartening to see is that there are now 10 museums in Cornwall alone who have acquired or are acquiring Treasure, helping to ensure that these finds are made available in a variety of communities.

The maps (courtesy of Dr Andrew Brown) on the following page shows all of the museums that have acquired Treasure reported between 2012-2022, and just those acquired in 2022. The larger the dot, the more cases that museum has acquired. As is perhaps expected, museums in East Anglia like Norwich Castle Museum and Colchester & Ipswich Museums Service acquire many cases but other museums in areas outside of the South East and East Anglia also show themselves to be major acquirers of Treasure. These include Dorset County Museum, Lincoln Museum, North Lincolnshire Museum, Oxfordshire Museums, the Potteries Museum & Art Gallery in Stoke-on-Trent and the York Museums Trust. The maps show the wide geographic spread of museums acquiring Treasure finds.

Enforcement

It is the aim of the Treasure Act to preserve cultural objects for the enjoyment of the public, rather than to pursue prosecutions. This is reflected in the fact that finders have 14 days to report Treasure from when they first know or have reason to believe the item they have found is potential Treasure: unique in English law. However, that is not to say finders who fail to report Treasure will not be prosecuted. Under the Act it is a criminal offence not to report a find of Treasure; failure to do so is punishable by a maximum term of three months imprisonment or a fine (or both). Anyone in possession of unreported Treasure may also be committing an offence under the Theft Act 1968 and could also be subject to the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002.

The British Museum works closely with relevant colleagues in local police forces, HM Revenue & Customs, and the Arts Council England (ACE) Export Licensing Unit, as well as the Metropolitan Police Service's Art & Antiques Unit and the Alliance to Reduce Heritage Crime. The Portable Antiquities Scheme also has a representative on the National Police Chief Council's Heritage and Cultural Property Crime Working Group.

The British Museum has a memorandum of understanding with eBay allowing it to question vendors of items of potential unreported Treasure. In 2022, one case was logged and made available to the police.

Since September 2007, the Head of the Portable Antiquities Scheme has been an Expert Adviser for export licensing applications of metal-detected finds. In several cases exporters of unreported potential Treasure were asked to report these items in accordance with the Treasure Act.

The Treasure Valuation Committee, in addition to recommending to the Secretary of State the value of finds of Treasure, also recommends abatements of rewards to interested parties when they are deemed to have behaved poorly in the course of making and reporting the Treasure find. The circumstances for which a reward may be abated are listed in paragraph 113 of the Treasure Act Code of Practice. Since 2007, there have been 28 cases where the Committee has abated a reward; the most common offences are failure to seek permission prior to searching and searching on a protected site, failure to report finds in a timely manner or as directed by the Coroner, and deliberately or recklessly damaging artefacts.

Valuation

The Treasure Valuation Committee recommends a value to the Secretary of State for finds of Treasure that come before it. This is in order for the landowner and finder to be paid a reward equal to the market value of the find. The process for valuation requires firstly that each find is 'provisionally' valued by an expert in the antiquities trade. The report from this expert – the 'provisional valuation' – is shared with the finder, landowner and acquiring museum (the 'interested parties') and they are invited to supply any comments they wish to the Treasure Valuation Committee, or to commission a valuation of their own. The Committee then considers the case at the next available meeting, taking account of the report on the material prepared for the Coroner, the provisional valuation, and any evidence or information provided by the interested parties. The Committee then makes a recommendation on the value (and on the distribution of the reward, if necessary) and interested parties are informed of this and given the opportunity to agree the valuation or to supply new evidence or information to challenge it, if they disagree with the Committee's view.

Table F: Valuation of Treasure cases reported in 2022

Total number of cases with agreed valuations:	118
Total value of all cases with agreed valuations:	£138,155
Average valuation for each case that has been valued:	£1,181
Median valuation for all cases that have been valued:	£250

The data in Table F reflects the information available as of August 2024. There are a number of cases that are still undergoing the valuation process where the final valuation, and the museum's agreement to proceed with acquisition, is still pending. Some cases that are acquired by museums are not valued at all, because the interested parties waive their right to a reward before the case reaches that stage (see Donations, above).

The highest valued individual case where a valuation was finalised was NI 22.06, a Bronze Age gold sleeve fastener found in Narrow Water, near Warrenpoint, County Down. This was valued at £19,000 and acquired by National Museums Northern Ireland. A Medieval gold iconographic finger-ring from Ravensworth area, North Yorkshire (2022 T301) was valued at £18,000 but unfortunately the museums which had hoped to acquire it withdrew their interest when the valuation was confirmed.

The Treasure Valuation Committee had six meetings in the calendar year 2022, where it saw 370 cases – 25 more than in the previous year. Of these cases, 19 were being reconsidered (that is, seen again) because one of the interested parties had challenged a previous recommendation by the Committee. This shows that the large majority of cases valued by the Committee are not formally challenged by interested parties, implying a high-level of overall satisfaction with the recommendations made by the Committee.

Report on work carried out by the British Museum's Department of Conservation by Pippa Pearce MBE

Fourteen 2022 Treasure cases came to Conservation and all have been conserved and passed on to the experts for the next stage of the Treasure process, even the coins and bird fitting that came as late addenda to North Bradley 2022 T1281 in May 2024. The 2022 finds were remarkable for the number of Bronze Age items, five of the fourteen cases (Chippenham 2022 T314, Nr Icklesham 2022 T364, Liddington 2022 T471, Nr Malmesbury 2022 T800 and Woodgreen 2022 T1188). Most were weapons, tools or scrap but the gold cuffs from Nr Malmesbury were an unusual pleasure as the crushed and folded metal required cleaning so that exact measurements could be taken. The Code of Practice for the Treasure Act discourages changing the condition of the object as found but sometimes some cleaning has to be done even to the non-coin finds to aid identification. In particular, we are careful to excavate and retain the fill of sockets from bronze axes in case items have been concealed inside or some environmental evidence can be identified. Some cleaning is done to see if the axes have been finished after casting (flash marks from mould removed, cutting edge sharpened, etc). As well as flagging up the existence any marks of wear and usage, we try and ascertain if any damage was accidental or intentional.

Again, unusually, five of the other cases contained silver coins, dating from the 163 Iron Age coins from Duntisbourne Rouse 2022 T970 and Duntisbourne Leer 2022 T971 to the 563 Tealby pennies from Garsdon 2022, all of which required some sort of wet cleaning. Additionally, the Garsdon hoard contained two curled over gold dinars. The jewellery and silver fittings from the Garsdon hoard did not arrive until July 2023, but have also been cleaned for identification.

The most Conservation effort is put into making coins legible (3287 coins were cleaned from the 2022 finds) and micro-excavating soil blocks and pot block lifts to record possible sequential saving or original positioning of inter-related finds (Stoke Lyne 2022 T234, 120 Antonine denarii; Tunstall 2022 T316, 2294 radiates in a pot; Wickwar 2022 T454, 70 siliquae in a pot; Longbridge Deverill 2022 T815 (Iron Age/early Roman block lift containing a bronze dish and jewellery plus iron and lead items); Woodgreen 2022 T1188 (Bronze Age tools and pot)).

Report on work carried out by the British Museum's Department of Scientific Research by Dr Laura Perucchetti

Most treasure discoveries do not require detailed analysis, as they generally fall into one of two categories: those that clearly contain enough precious metal to qualify as treasure, or those where the precious metal content is irrelevant to their classification.

However, some treasure cases require scientific analysis to better understand the nature and likely age of the objects. The British Museum's Scientific Research Department is equipped with an X-ray fluorescence spectrometer, which enables non-destructive compositional analysis of the surface of objects with sufficient precision to verify whether they meet the requirements of the Treasure process. In 2022, thirty-two treasure cases were examined and analysed by the British Museum's Scientific Research Department.

Coins are usually not analysed. According to the Treasure Act, a single coin is not considered treasure, and multiple coins together may qualify as a hoard, whose classification is typically independent of the precious metal content. Special cases include coins that were re-purposed for a different use. This was the case with 2022 T1126, which had four rivets added. Analysis confirmed that the composition of the rivets differs from that of the coin, revealing more about the object's biography, and supporting the hypothesis of a later modification.
